THAM RONG COMMUNITY

Phetchaburi

Ever since people first settled in the Tam Rong sub-district of Phetchaburi, the area has always had a strong tie to toddy palm trees, which are found in abundance throughout the province. Locals here have been cultivating these important trees for generations, passing on recipes for decades; now, it's your chance to try some of these unusual dishes, such as toddy palm soup, a slightly bitter stew, and toddy palm cake, a deliciously sweet dessert. During your visit, locals can also show you other ways in which they use the plant, including wickerwork, weaving and making other crafts.
